THE Committee consider it necessary, on laying the annexed Accounts of the Hospital before the Subscribers and the Public, to remark that although the excess of income above expenditure will appear thereby to be upwards of twelve hundred pounds, what may be considered as the maintenance income has been less than the expenditure upwards of one hundred pounds; the increase of the present year has arisen from an enlarged Grant from Parliament, for the purpose of providing extended accommodations, which have been so far obtained, as that the beds are increased from one hundred and fourteen to one hundred and eighty: the residue of this grant will be expended in completing the arrangements adequate to this extension, and providing additional hedding and clothing.

As by the bounty of Parliament the accommodations in the Hospital have been thus enlarged, the Committee did not delay making it as extensively useful as possible; but had it publicly notified that on the 5th of January, 1809, they would take in Patients from the North Side of the City, in addition to the district heretofore attended to: the district now comprehends the entire of the city within the Circular-road. The benefits arising from this extension, and the acknowledged usefulness of the Hospital, by checking contagion, as well as relieving the Sick Poor, the Committee confidently hope will speak so loudly to the Public, as to induce such additional subscriptions as will enable them to defray the expense they will unavoidably have to incur. They are sorry to remark that the subscriptions for the past year, have fallen short nearly one hundred and sixty pounds of what they were the preceding one.

Applications for admission must be left at the letterbox, at the eastern entrance to the Hospital, before half-past nine o'clock in the morning, in order that the applicants may be visited by the extern Physicians in such time, as that those whose diseases are ascertained to be fit for admission may be brought to the Hospital on that day. No patient can be admitted until seen by one of the Physicians of the Hospital, nor in any other manner than in the Hospital Carriage, which is on springs, and the patients The object of the Institution being not only to relieve the Sick Poor, but also to check the progress of contagion, no recommendation is necessary to entitle to admission. The Committee, in order to carry the latter object into effect, employ men to whitewash with hot lime, the apartments from whence patients are brought, when it appears needful, and where contagion has been found to exist with extraordinary virulence, more powerful measures have been resorted to with success.

- " (in trust) to be applied towards the bene-
- " volent purposes of the Institution."

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Upon which the Hospital is founded, laid down by the original Subscribers to its Erection and Establishment, expressed in Resolutions passed at a Meeting held at the Royal Exchange, Dublin, the 28th October, 1801.

Ι.

THAT to relieve the destitute poor, afflicted with fever, and to check the progress of contagion, are the main objects of the proposed Institution:

II.

ede protectioners their automa

That in order to carry the design fully into effect, we are of opinion, that the erection of a new building, adapted in its construction and all its arrangements for the specific purpose of a House of Recovery, would be more desirable than the fitting, up any old buildings designed for other purposes.

III.

That we consider manifest poverty and disease, properly ascertained to the satisfaction of the Managing Committee (to be appointed as hereafter directed) and residence within a certain district (to be defined in the manner hereafter prescribed) as the only circumstances necessary to entitle a patient to admission; and we are of opinion that no recommendation of a subscriber should, on any account, be attended to, unless the above circumstances shall, after minute enquiry at the houses of the persons recommended, be found to concur.

o house to be below and of hearter

IV.

That the procuring the ground, on which the House of Recovery shall be built, the erection of the building, and the providing the necessary furniture, be entrusted to fifteen trustees, in whom the property of the Institution shall be invested, without any other controul than that they shall permit the building to be used for the purpose of a House of Recovery or Fever Hospital, conformably to the general principles now agreed on.

V.

That in the outset of the establishment, accommodation should be provided for the reception of at least forty patients: But if the funds of the Institution, whether arising from donations or annual subscriptions, should so far increase as that a surplus shall remain after the above-mentioned accommodation shall have been provided for, the trustees shall be at liberty either to enlarge the establishment by providing accommodation for an additional number of fever patients, or, in case such enlargement shall be deemed inexpedient, to such other measures as they shall deem most conducive to the health of the poor of this city; and in case the House of Recovery shall hereafter be discontinued, for the space of three years, the said trustees shall be at liberty to dispose of the property then in their possession, or the produce thereof, for the purposes aforesaid, in such manner as they shall judge most eligible.

VI.

That the management of the Institution, the extent of the district from whence patients labouring under contagious fever may be admitted into the house, the appointment of physicians, nurses, and all the other officers and servants, be vested in a committee, consisting of the trustees, and six other persons to be elected annually by the governors.

VII. That

VII:

That said committee shall be fully competent to make all such rules and bye-laws (not inconsistent with the principles expressed in these resolutions) as may seem best fitted to carry the objects of the Institution fully into effect, as well for the internal regulation of the house and the admission of patients, as for preventing the spreading of contagion in the houses and neighbourhood from whence the patients shall have been removed, and for the introduction of such habits of cleanliness, as may diminish, if not destroy, the operation of those causes, that have contributed to make such an Institution so necessary at the present time, and to disburse, from time to time, such sums as may be necessary for any of the above purposes.

VIII.

That a donation of twenty guineas, paid in any one year, shall make the donor governor for life; and that annual subscribers of two guineas, or upwards, shall also be governors; provided that no such annual subscriber (after the first year) shall vote at the election of members of the managing committee, unless his name shall have been on the books of the Institution, as a subscriber, for one whole year previous to such election, and unless he shall have paid his subscription for the year, in which he shall tender his vote, together with all arrears thereof.

IX.

That it shall be lawful for the Managing Committee, at any meeting, specially summoned for the purpose (not fewer than eleven members being present) to enlarge the sum necessary to constitute a governor.

X. That

X.

That when a vacancy or vacancies shall occur by the death of resignation of any of the trustees, any one of the remaining trus tees shall have a power of convening the others, specifying the place, time, and purpose of the meeting, and giving three days notice thereof; and the trustees who shall meet in consequence o such notice (provided every trustee resident in the city of Dublin, shall have been summoned, and not fewer than five shall have been assembled together) shall be competent either to fill up such vacancy or vacancies, by the election of a new trastee or trustees, or to empower the governors to enlarge the number of managers to co-operate with the trusteen by electing one or more additional managers as may seem best calculated to advance the purposes of the Institution; provided always, that the number of managers shall not be enlarged beyond the number of nine, nor the number of trustees reduced below the number of twelve, nor the whole number of the committee beyond the number of twenty-one, by such proceeding, and sail to eventure to duffer

XI

That in case of the insolvency, or general non-residence of any one or more of the trustees in the city of Dublin, or within ten miles thereof, the remaining trustees be, and they are hereby impowered (if they shall think it expedient so to do) to declare the place of such trustee or trustees vacant, and to proceed either to the election of a new trustee of trustees, or to enlarge the number of elective managers in the same manner, and subject to the same restrictions, as are contained in the foregoing resolution.

XII.

That in case it shall be found by the experience of three years after the opening of the Hospital, that a committee of twenty-one members is not sufficient for conducting the business of the Institution, it shall be competent for the managing committee, specially summoned for the purpose, and not fewer than eleven being assembled together, to declare that the number of elective managers should be enlarged to any number not exceeding the number of trustees at the time, or that the number of said annually elected managers should be reduced to a number of not less than the original number of six, as the exigency of the Institution may require.

XIII.

That in case it shall be found expedient to enlarge the committee to the full number of thirty members, and the number of trustees shall have been reduced below the original number of fifteen, it shall be competent to the trustees, or any five of them, assembled in the manner described in the Xth resolution, to restore the original number of fifteen trustees in the manner herein before directed.

XIV.

That it be an instruction to the managing committee to take special care that such a registry shall be kept of all their proceedings, whether within the walls of the House of Recovery, or without, as shall enable them at all times to exhibit to the public, a detailed view of their progress; and that it be a standing rule of the Institution, that at the end of the year after the opening of the Hospital, and at the end of every succeeding year, an account of the annual income and expenditure, and all other particulars of their progress, shall be printed for the public information.

BYE-LAWS,

Concluded upon by the Managing Committee for conducting the Hospital; passed at a Meeting held in their Board-Room, the 13th April, 1809.

General Rules.

SERVICE --

- I. All general meetings of the Governors shall be summoned by public advertisement, in one or more newspapers and one shall be called annually, to wit, on the first Thursday in October, to appoint six persons, who, with the fifteen Trustees, are to form the Managing Committee for the ensuing year.
- II. The district of the House of Recovery includes the whole of the City of Dublin, within the Circular-road.
- III. Applications for admission, stating the sick person's name and place of abode, are to be put into the letter-box, at the east entrance to the Hospital, before half-past nine o'clock in the forenoon, or the patients cannot be visited on the same day; and no patient can be received into the Hospital unless the Physician's order for admission be delivered on the day on which it bears date; nor in any other manner than in the Hospital Carriage.

 IV. In

- IV. In order to counteract contagion, the apartments from whence patients are removed to the Hospital, shall be whitewashed by persons appointed for the purpose, when the extern Physician shall report it to be necessary; and whenever the extern Physician shall report to the Managing Committee that Fever of a peculiar malignancy exists in a particular dwelling; all necessary measures shall be taken by them to purify the furniture, bedding, &c. in order to extinguish the existing contagion; and in cases where the removal of the sick person shall not be deemed adviseable, or where the fever shall have ceased in a dwelling-house, and any measures shall appear to the extern Physician necessary or conducive to prevent the renewal of its effects, he shall report his opinion thereon to the Managing Committee, who may give directions for their adoption.
- V. No Officer or Servant of the Institution, shall presume at any time to take from any Patient, Tradesman, Servant or others, any fee or gratuity of any kind, directly or indirectly, for any service done, or to be done on account of the Institution, on pain of being immediately dismissed.

VI. In order to form a permanent fund for the maintenance of the Hospital, all sums given thereto, whether by Legacy or Donation, amounting to fifty pounds and upwards, shall be laid out in such Government Securities as shall be approved of by the Committee.

Managing

Managing Committee.

- I. The Managing Committee meet at the House of Recovery, to transact business, on every Thursday, at eight o'clock in the morning, except during the months of November, December, January and February, when they meet at half-past eight o'clock, three to be a quorum, and may adjourn from time to time as they shall think necessary.
- II. The Committee may be summoned to meet on any emergency by the Register, on his receiving a requisition for the purpose, signed by two Members of the Committee.
- III. One or more Members of the Committee shall be appointed Visitor or Visitors for each month, whose special duty it shall be to visit the Hospital frequently, and to see that all regulations are duly attended to.
- IV. The minutes of every day's meeting to be carefully read over in the fair book, and when compared with the rough minutes to be signed by the Chairman of the day; and all business entered for consideration on the minutes of any day's proceedings, to be considered and disposed of on the following day day of meeting, before any other business is transacted, with the following exceptions viz.:

1st. At the first meeting in the month medicines and all other articles wanted for the current month to be ordered.

2d. At the weekly meeting next following, the 24th of each month, the Register shall furnish a list of, and the bills of articles furnished to the House, for which payment is to be made; these shall be examined by the Committee, and if found right, and to have been procured conformably to order, shall be marked for payment, and a draft or drafts on the Treasurer, given to discharge the same.

3d. At the meeting succeeding that on which the foregoing examination has been made, the receipts or vouchers for the sums so ordered to be paid, shall be compared therewith, and if found right, the account shall be passed and the abstract entered on the minutes.

4th. Whenever the Treasurers' receipts are produced from the Collector the same shall be entered on the minutes.

5th. On reading the minutes of the former meeting, when entries of money occur that form the basis for entries in the Journal, examination shall be made that those transactions be correctly journalized.

Physicians and Surgeon.

- I. The Physicians and Surgeon shall be elected annually to wit, on the first meeting of the Managing Committee in the month of November, the Committee to be specially summoned for the purpose, and no election or dismission of a Physician or Surgeon to take place at such first meeting, unless there be eleven members present; nevertheless if said number do not attend at the next meeting of the Committee, specially summoned for the purpose, the members present, being a quorum, at such second meeting shall be competent to act.
- II. Two of the Physicians shall attend to the intern duty, and two to the extern: and the intern Physicians are to visit the Hospital every day at ten o'clock in Summer, and at half-past ten o'clock in Winter, and to write their Names and the hour of attendance in a book for the purpose.
- III. The Pharmacopeia agreed on by the Physicians and sanctioned by the Managing Committee shall be adhered to.
- IV. The Physicians shall write their Prescriptions in books to be kept for that purpose, and give the necessary directions to the Apothecary respecting the medical treatment of the Patients in the interval between their daily visits; also respecting the ventilation of the passages and wards.

 V. Applications

- V. Applications for admission shall be forwarded to the extern Physicians at half-past nine o'clock, the applicants shall then be visited as soon as possible, and if the Physician find their diseases to be such as are fit to be admitted into the Hospital, he shall fill up and sign a printed order for admission, which he shall direct the Patients Friends to take immediately to the Hospital; if the Physician find the case unfit for removal to the Hospital, he shall on the following day return an account in writing, in order that it be entered in the registry of applications for admission; and it is to be noticed as a fundamental principle of the Institution, that no patient is to be admitted into the Hospital but in the manner set forth in this rule, except that if the Physician obtain knowledge of a poor Person labouring under Contagious Fever in any other manner, than in that before recited, he is not only at liberty but enjoined to order such poor Patient to be admitted.
- VI. The Physicians shall report in the order for admission all the apartments from whence Patients are brought to the Hospital, that require White-washing, and to the Managing Committee when cases of peculiar malignancy exist, that call for other measures.
- VII. The Surgeon shall attend with the Physicians on every Sunday, Tuesday and Friday Morning, at ten o'clock in Summer, and half-past ten in Winter; and write his name and hour of attendance in the book for that purpose; he is at those times to give all necessary Surgical Attendance to the Patients in the Hospital, he is also to attend at all other times when state the of the Patient may require it.

VIII. The intern Physicians shall order the wards of the Hospital to be white-washed, when they shall judge expedient.

In the winter months, that is from first of November to first of May, if the intern Physicians find that Patients they are about to discharge, labour under a Pulmonic or Rheumatic Disease, which requires the warmth of additional clothing to forward recovery, as well as to guard against the chance of speedy relapse into Fever, they shall certify the same to the House keeper, in order that she shall furnish such Patients with a new Flannel Waistcoat each, previous to dismission.

X. The intern Physicians shall order the removal of Patients from Fever to Convalescent Wards, as they shall judge necessary; and in case of relapse, shall immediately order them back again. When they judge Patients sufficiently recovered to leave the Hospial, they shall put in the diet book, instead of the order for diet, a mark (say +) and no Patients are to be discharged from the Hospital without this mark. In case of death instead of the order for diet, another mark shall be affixed (say + +).

XI. When a Physician or the Surgeon shall by reason of ill health or otherwise be prevented from attending his duty, he shall communicate the cause of his absence to the Committee, and if practicable, previous to his absenting himself, in order that the Committee may be enabled by such timely notice, to decide on the arrangements proper to be made to fill his place,

Register

Register and Purveyor.

- I. He shall reside in the Hospital, and be accountable for all articles committed to his charge, and shall have a general care over the premises, and have them kept in neat and clean order, and if any thing thereon appears amiss, he shall have it rectified, or report to the Committee. The Porters and White-washers shall be under his care and direction, save that the Apothecary is to give them direction, respecting that part of their duty which comes under his controul.
- II. He shall keep the accounts of the Institution regularly, by double entry; fairly copy the proceedings of the Trustees, general meetings of Governors, and of the Managing Committee; and summon the meetings of Trustees and Committees as required.
- III. He shall give orders, so that the House be kept well supplied with those articles of provisions which the Committee have contracted for, and shall purchase on the best terms those smaller articles for the dietary, that are not supplied by contract; and he shall deliver out the provisions to the House-keeper, according to the diet tables, and the orders of the Physicians as to the number of Patients on each description of diet. He shall keep exact accounts of the transactions under this head, according to the forms laid down by the Committee; he shall be responsible for any errors or deficiencies in this department, and shall have no profit whatever arising therefrom.

IV. The Coals shall be under his care, and he shall deliver out to the several Officers, Nurses and Servants the different allowances ordered for their use.

Collector.

He shall collect the Subscriptions with diligence, care and respect, and shall lodge the sums so collected with the Treasurer, at least once a week; and he shall deliver the Reports of the Institution to the Subscribers.

Apothecary.

- 1. He shall reside in the Hospital; and he accountable for all articles committed to his charge; and shall not practice as an Apothecary, except for the Institution; he shall keep an exact registry of all Patients applying for admission; also of all those that are brought into the House; in books for those purposes.
- II. On receipt of the Physicians Order he shall send the Hospital Carriage (having previously viewed the inside, and seen that it and the bedding are in a clean and proper state) for the Patient; and give the Porters, who attend it, one of the printed advices respecting removing infection, to be left in the room the Patient is brought from; and he shall direct the White-washers to white-wash such apartments as the Physicians notify to him stand in need thereof.
- III. He shall attend on the Male Patients (as the House, keeper on the Female) in the reception room of the Hospital, and see that an accurate account be entered, in a proper book, of the clothes they bring; and he shall be responsible that when taken off they be immersed in cold water, and given in charge to the laundry maid; their hands, face and limbs washed and made perfectly clean with warm water and soap, and their hair hair combed; and that each Patient be provided with the Hospital Dress previous to being removed into any of the wards; and he shall ascertain when Patients bring money or other valuables with them, and shall have the charge thereof until the Patient is fit to leave the House, and he shall keep regular entries of all such transactions.

- IV. He shall satisfy himself by frequent personal visitation by night, as well as by day, that the Patients are properly attended to, by the Nurses, and get their Medicines and Drinks as directed.—The strict observance of this rule will be especially necessary in Fever accompanied with Delirium.
- V. The ventilation of the passages and wards will be regulated by the intern Physicians, and the Apothecary shall be responsible that their orders are implicitly obeyed.
- VI. He shall on the death of a Patient send notice thereof to the friends of the deceased, at the apartments from whence the Patient was brought to the Hospital; if they do not send for the body within twenty-four hours, he shall send it for interment to the most convenient burying ground, in the Carriage provided by the Hospital for that purpose.

House-keeper.

- I. She shall reside in the Hospital; and be accountable for all furniture, bedding, clothing and other articles committed to her charge; and she will have the control over the several Nurses and Female Servants; and in conjunction with the Apothecary, be responsible that the Nurses, by night as well as by day, attend upon the sick with diligence; and that they administer such Medicines and Drinks, as shall have been prescribed for them, at the times, and in the manner ordered by the Physicians.
- II. She shall attend on the Female Patients (as the Apothecary on the Male) in the reception room of the Hospital; and see that an accurate account be entered in a proper book, of the clothes they bring; and she shall be responsible that when taken off they be immersed in cold water, and given in charge to the Laundry Maid; their hands, face and limbs washed, and made perfectly clean, with warm water and soap, and their hair combed; and that each Patient be provided with the Hospital Dress previous to being removed into any of the wards; and she shall ascertain when Patients bring money or other valuables with them; and shall hand the same to the Apothecary, who shall take charge thereof.—(See Apothecary's rule III.)

- III. She shall be responsible for the general cleanliness of the Hospital; and that the passages and wards are washed three or four times a week, with a wet mop, and carefully swept every morning before visiting hour, and this to be done over every part of the floor, of each occupied ward; it will likewise be her duty to see that all discharges from the Patients shall be removed from the wards, into the water closets, without delay.
- IV. She shall, when any Female Patient be taken in labour, send immediately for an Accoucheur, so that no time may be lost in providing the necessary relief.
- V. The laundry will be under her special superintendance; and she shall be responsible that all linen and bed clothes, on being removed from the bodies of the Patients, be immersed in cold water; that the clothes brought into the House by Patients, be properly purified and aired, and kept in her custody, she taking special care in all cases, that they be perfectly dry, before they are delivered to Patients on their discharge.
- VI. She shall see, that on the death of a Patient, the body be stretched out, properly dressed, and laid in a coffin, and deposited in a room appropriated to that specific purpose.

November to first of May) furnish each Patient with a flannel waistcoat, that shall be certified to her by one of the intern Physicians to require it, on account of their labouring under a Pulmonic or Rheumatic Disease, which requires the warmth of such additional clothing, to forward recovery, as well as to guard against the chance of relapse into Fever; said certificate shall be a voucher to her, in accounting for the number of waistcoats given into her charge.

VIII. She shall receive from the Purveyor, the provisions for the diet of the Patients, Nurses and Servants, agreeably to the tables of diet, and the orders of the Physicians as to the number of Patients on each description of diet, and shall see that they be properly cooked and served at the appointed hours.

IX. When she considers any of the Nurses and Servants employed, ineligible to be retained, she shall report to the Committee to get an order for their discharge; and she shall make inquiry into the characters of such as apply, and engage those she shall think most eligible; which engagements shall be reported to the succeeding meeting of the Committee, for confirmation; and she is required to read the rules, for Nurses and Female Servants, together with the fifth general rule, to each Nurse or Female Servant she engages.

Patients.

- I. They are to observe the greatest regularity and decorum at all times; and are not to eat or drink of any thing unless ordered by the Physician, and supplied by the Hospital.
- II. No intercourse shall be permitted between the Patients accommodated in the Fever and Convalescent Hospitals.
- III. The Convalescent Patients shall breakfast at nine, dine at two, and sup at eight o'clock, each day; diet tables shall be hung up in the several convalescent wards of the Hospital, for their information.
- IV. The Clergy of all persuasions shall be admitted to see any Patient in the Hospital, on application being made to the Apothecary for that purpose; other persons shall be allowed to visit the Patients in the Hospital, on Tuesdays and Saturdays, at twelve o'clock, with leave from the Apothecary, who is ordered not to grant such indulgence but for a short space of time; taking especial care that the persons so admitted, conduct themselves in a decent and proper manner, and not place themselves more than is necessary in the way of infection.

Porters.

I. Two of them shall reside in lodges at the gates of the Hospital premises; and some of their families shall attend to the opening and shutting thereof; and it is expected that their lodges shall be kept peculiarly near and clean; and that such of their families as attend the gates, shall be always clean and respectable in their persons and apparel.

II. They shall, on receiving instructions from the Apothecary, proceed with the carriage and convey the Patients to the Hospital, from their own homes, with due attention to decorum and humanity; taking care to leave the printed advices*, respecting removing infection, in the rooms the

ANNUAL MEDICAL REPORT.

ANNUAL

MEDICAL REPORT.

To make an annual record of the medical transactions occurring in Hospitals, to review those which have occurred in preceding years, and to compare them one with the other, cannot but furnish matter of very general interest and importance to that Public, for whose advantage these Institutions were founded, and by whose munificence they are supported.

Impressed with this conviction, and anxious to afford every suitable information connected with their department, the Physicians of the House of Recovery have, since the period of its opening, in three different publications, entered very fully into the objects of that Institution, and have therein endeavoured, as far as their experience then could warrant them, to trace the effects, of which it had been productive.

In these reports, the objects of the Institution and its general plan of operation have been so amply detailed, that it might justly be deemed a needless waste of time, even to recapitulate them; suffice it, however, to say, that its ultimate aim is not so much to exterminate Contagious Fever from our Metropolis, (that being from the nature of the disease impossible,) as to contract contract the sphere of its action and lessen its ravages, by confining its influence, as much as possible, to the first subjects of its attack. Relief to the immediate sufferer under disease, (almost the sole object of other Hospitals,) though a prominent feature in our establishment, is not its grand characteristic: it extends its benevolent attention to the family of the sick, by whose removal to the Hospital, and the purification of their dwellings, it protects the remaining inmates from a wide spreading Contagion, and ultimately sends forth those admitted within its walls, as incapable, as circumstances will permit, of diffusing the disease farther.

How far any of these advantages have hitherto been derived from the operation of the Fever Hospital, must appear on perusal of the former and of the present Reports; that they have already in a degree resulted, must afford the purest satisfaction to the benevolent.

In the present undertaking the Reporter has it in contemplation, simply to state the occurrences of the past year, to compare it with those which have preceded, and to take such a general view of the facts disclosed in the records of the Hospital, since its first institution, as will enable him to lay a foundation, for the deduction of more useful and accurate inferences hereafter.

Since the extension of the district, in May, 1805, so as to include that part of the City, on the south side of the River, and within the Circular-road, its limits remained the same to the close of 1808, though at the commencement of the present year they have been considerably enlarged; but though the limits of the Institution remained the same, for that period of time, yet the number of objects admissible to its benefits was materially encreased; as in 1807 females in the service of the opulent were; for the first time received; and in 1808 every description of servants; the reasons of their exclusion, previous to these periods; has been fully stated in the former reports.

From the number of servants, male and female, who are ill of Fever, it might be presumed that their admission would make a considerable increase in the number of Patients relieved; this however is so far from having been the case, that in 1808 there were nine cases of Fever less than in 1807*. The following Table exhibiting the relative numbers for the last three years; of those labouring under Contagious Fever, under Scarlatina, and of those previously ill at the Houses of the sick, will set this matter in a clear point of view.

A result somewhat different from this might, by some, be deduced from the returns of the Sick Poor Institution, for the years 1807 and 8, as in the latter year, Contagious Fever is ranked at 453,

When we reflect, therefore, that the confidence of the poor has been daily encreasing in our Institution, and that they also shew less reluctance in entering it, it would appear from the foregoing table, (more especially from the second and fourth heads) that Fever has been on the decline, within the sphere of the Hospital.

The constant predominance in number of females over the males, remarked in former reports, may be noticed this year, though in an inferior degree; indeed it will appear from a table, hereafter to be annexed, that the proportion of males and females, has, since the commencement, of the Institution, been gradually approximating, both with respect to the numbers admitted, and (what may seem more singular still) in the number of deaths.

Fever, though prevalent at all seasons of the year, within the precincts of our Metropolis, would yet seem to select particular periods in each year, for its greater extension; thus it will

and in the former at 269. No fair deduction, however, can be drawn from such premises, as is remarked by the Reporter of that Institution for the last year.—" This Statement," he observes, "without explanation, might lead one to suppose, that contagious Fever has increased within our District, instead of having been most sensibly affected by the beneficial influence of the Fever Hospital. The circumstance of greater attention being paid to the division of Fevers, will sufficiently explain the matter; but does not enable us to form a comparison between the similar diseases of the two years."

"Of the 455 cases of contagious Fever," he adds, "contained in the returns of this year, by far the greater number were admitted into the Fever Hospital. It is a pleasing fact which cannot prove uninteresting to the Public, that any persons who were ever patients in that house, were not only willing, but anxious to return there, if necessary, and earnest in recommending their friends to commit themselves to the care of its Physicians. This at least the writer can affert, that he never met with an instance to the contrary."

appear upon a review of the tables for 1805—6—7 and 8, that in certain months, Fever was unusually prevalent, these months being generally in succession.—The following tabular view of the numbers admitted in Fever, for each month, in these years, will best serve to illustrate this position.

The only obvious cause for such occasional excess of Fever is to be found in the vicissitudes of our seasons, because the circumstances of the poor, predisposing them to disease, are almost always the same.—From the preceding table it appears that the months, from April to October inclusive, are most remarkable for their numbers though (as will be seen bereafter) not for their comparative mortality.

The epidemic of this year has exhibited but little novelty, differing in very few respects indeed, from those which preceded it; at the commencement of the year, the prevalent symptoms were head-ache, deep seated general pains, accompanied by pain in the bowels, perhaps a remnant of that state of the system, which in autumn gives rise to dysenteric affections; the latter symptoms yielded to gentle and repeated laxatives.

The lungs were not this year affected so frequently, as they usually are in the middle of winter; at the approach of spring, however, the diseases of that season mingle their symptoms with those of Fever; and a large proportion of the Patients laboured under pectoral affections, indicated by cough, expectoration sometimes tinged with blood, pain in the chest and sides: as spring advanced, the determination to the lungs seemed to encrease; and in April several Patients were received, whose symptoms approached to those of true pneumonic inflammation; in one of these the cough and expectoration were occasioned by the rupture of an abscess in the liver. A considerable and distinct tumor appeared below the false ribs of the right side, copious and foction expectoration.

expectoration suddenly supervened, the tumor gradually subsided, and the Patient was finally restored to health.

In the months of April and May several cases of intermitting Fever were received, and though such Patients are not admissible, yet if the paroxysm be present at the time of the extern Physician's visit, and the Patient conceals the circumstance of the intermission, the disease can hardly be distinguished from ordinary Fever; some of these cases were distinct and genuine intermittents at their admission, others for a considerable time bore every appearance of contagious Fever and then assumed the intermittent type.

In the course of the summer the pectoral affections, especially of the pleura, were little moderated in violence or in frequency, so that a determination to the lungs was obvious, in a large proportion of cases admitted, even in the beginning of July; towards autumn, a determination to the head become more remarkable, and many complained also of pain in the epigastricum, probably the consequence of bilious conjestion: fever towards the slose of autumn not unfrequently terminated in quotidian and tertian agues.

During the winter quarter the most remarkable symptoms were delirium, watchfulness, great prostration of strength, precordial oppression, occasional diarrhœa, and slight pectoral affections. The mortality has this year exceeded that of any which preceded it; being about one in 11; this, however, must not be considered as the mortality of Fever, inasmuch as a considerable proportion of those who died were moribund when admitted, and almost as many more died of other diseases than Fever.

The following table exhibiting the number of males and females admitted each year since the opening of the Hospital, and also their relative mortality, will enable us to take a more satisfactory view of this subject, and to deduce a conclusion which at least shall approach to the truth,

From this table then it appears, that among the males the mortality is 1 in 10, among the females 1 in 163, and the average mortality 1 in 127: from this table too it will be seen (as was observed before) that the males and females have been gradually approximating to an equality in the numbers admitted, and also that the proportion of deaths among the females has been as gradually encreasing. In order to ascertain the actual mortality of Fever, we must deduct from the total number of deaths, such as were dying when admitted, and such as died of other diseases than Fever; of the former description (as has been collected from the registry) there were 97,* and of the latter 75,+ both of which deducted from 387 leave 215 deaths among the Fever cases, which (rating the latter at 4000) makes the mortality of Fever as only 1 in 181. The mortality of Fever in the habitations of the Poor is much greater, as by the Report of one of the Physicians to the Sick Poor Institution, it would appear that one in ten of those

Of these 97 cases 24 died within a few hours after admission, 34 on the second day, and the remainder before the end of the fourth.

at such times been proportionably fatal.—The following table has accordingly been drawn up for the purpose of ascertaining this point. It exhibits the proportion of mortality in each quarter of the years 1805—6—7 and 8, and also the combined mortality of similar quarters.

From this table it must appear that the mortality has (with the single exception of the first quarter, in 1805) been greates when the number of Patients has been least, that is, in the first quarter; and that in the three remaining quarters it has been pretty much on a par. The reason of this difference in mortality, must consist in the greater predominance of pectoral affections, during the former period.

As As the deaths of any one year cannot with any degree, of precision ascertain the days on which Fevers have a tendency to terminate fatally; the following table is annexed, not only shewing the days on which death took place in the last year, but also in the three years preceding it.

From this table it would appear that the greater number of deaths had occurred on the 8th and 11th days, and that the 6th, 7th, 10th, 12th, 14th, and 15th days, reckoned the next greatest number.

As the cases of a single year cannot ascertain the tendency of Fever to terminate favourably on particular days, the following table is subjoined, shewing at one view not only the critical days of the last year, but of those which preceded; on this subject, however, we would observe that when art interferes actively in the treatment of disease, little dependance can be placed upon any conclusion thence drawn, as to the days of their natural crisis.

From this table, containing a review of 1773 cases, it would appear that the greatest number of crisis occurred on the 7th and 9th days, and next to these on the 5th, 6th, 8th, 10th, 11th and 12th days.

It cannot but be pleasing to observe that the number of Nurses and Servants belonging to the Hospital attacked by Fever in the course of the year, has been very inconsiderable indeed; five only having been affected, of whom one, a valuable servant to the Institution, died of the disease.

With respect to Scarlet Fever, little has occurred last year worthy of remark, but 24 cases having been admitted under that disease, and in none of these did there appear any deviation from the usual course of symptoms—all recovered.

After this detail of the Effects and Objects of our Institution; there can exist but little necessity for appealing to the hearts of the benevolent; to those, however, who are possessed of wealth without beneficence we might appeal, on the firm ground of self interest, a motive however disavowed, if once felt by them, never neglected; we might tell them that if their poorer Brethren are extensively afflicted with Contagious Fever, their riches cannot bar the door against Infection, which will insinuate itself into the inmost recesses of their dwellings, attached to their furnitures heir clothes and their bedding: for all these are furnished to them by the labouring poor.

Thus then the chief object of our Hospital is to give immunity to the higher classes of society, and the most effectual relief to the lower, from a most calamitous disease; its claims therefore on the bountiful and opulent of this great City are not merely strong, but (we should think) irresistable.
